2. Introduction

Welcome to Trinity College and to the Postgraduate Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare. This handbook is intended as a guide to various aspects of the course, and it sets out the organisational framework of the course as well as its content. However, it should be stressed that there is space within the design for the participants to address other issues that may emerge during the course and there will be opportunities to explore these during the year.

The reading lists included are intended to provide references to research and literature on the different subjects. They are designed to be a long term as well as short-term resource. We would also recommend that you make use of the wide range of materials available online through the TCD library, and that you regularly consult the contents of online journals. The university is also a full member of the North South Child Protection Hub which means that registered students have full access to the site.

We hope you find the year with us on the course both stimulating and enjoyable.

The Postgraduate Advisory Service

What?

The Postgraduate Advisory Service (PAS) is a free and confidential service available to all registered postgraduate students in Trinity College. PAS offers a comprehensive range of academic, pastoral and professional supports including one-to-one appointments, workshops and trainings, and emergency financial assistance.

Why?

PAS exists to ensure that all postgraduates students have a dedicated, specialist service independent of the School-system to whom they can turn for support and advice during their time at Trinity. Common concerns students present to PAS include stress; financial worries; queries about regulations or services available at Trinity; supervisor-relationship concerns; academic progression issues; academic appeals.

Who?

The Postgraduate Advisory Service is led by the Postgraduate Student Support Officers who provide frontline support for all Postgraduate students in Trinity. These Support Officers will act as your first point of contact and a source of support and guidance; they can also put you in touch with or recommend other services, depending on your needs.

For an appointment, please e-mail postgrad.support@tcd.ie

Website: https://www.tcd.ie/Senior_Tutor/postgraduateadvisory/

To keep up to date with the supports and events for postgraduate please check out the regular PAS newsletter sent to all postgraduates via email or follow PAS on Instagram @TCDPGAdvisory

Student Learning and Development

Student Learning and Development (SLD) are here to help you achieve your academic potential while studying in Trinity. They have a range of online resources and workshops for postgraduate students. For more information on SLD please see their website.

Support Provision for Students with Disabilities

Trinity has adopted a Reasonable Accommodation Policy that outlines how supports are implemented in Trinity. Students seeking reasonable accommodation whilst studying in Trinity should proceed by applying for reasonable accommodations with the Disability Service in their student portal my.tcd.ie. Based on appropriate evidence of a disability and information obtained from the student on the impact of their disability and their academic course requirements, the Disability Staff member will identify supports designed to meet the student's disability support needs. Following the Needs Assessment, the student's Disability Officer prepares an Individual Learning Educational Needs Summary \(LENS\) detailing the Reasonable Accommodations to be implemented. The information outlined in the LENS is communicated to the relevant School via the student record in SITS.

Postgraduate students (both taught and research) who have a disability are encouraged to apply to the Disability Service for reasonable accommodation. Supports for Postgraduate Students include:

- Academic Support
- Assistive Technology
- Occupational Therapy
- Preparation for Viva Voce examinations

An application can be made through my.tcd.ie via the 'My Disability Service' tab. Additional information is available in a step-by-step How to apply for Reasonable Accommodations guide.

Any postgraduate student in Trinity (or prospective student) is welcome to contact the Disability Service to informally discuss their needs prior to making a formal application. Please email askds@tcd.ie or visit the Disability Service Contact page.

Library

The Library's history dates back to the establishment of the College in 1592 and it is the largest library in Ireland. Today it has over 6 million printed volumes with extensive collections of journals, manuscripts, maps and music reflecting over 400 years of academic development. The most famous of its manuscripts, the Book of Kells and the Book of Durrow, were presented by Henry Jones, Bishop of Meath and former vice-chancellor of the University, in the 1660s. The Library was endowed with Legal Deposit privilege in 1801 and continues to receive copies of material published in the United Kingdom and Ireland.

The Library supports the learning and research needs across all disciplines of the College; it is a major research library of international repute; it provides services to a wide range of external users and institutions. The subject librarian for the School of Social Work and Social Policy Caroline Montgomery.

The majority of journals listed in the various course outlines are now available online to registered students and there will be a training session during Week 1 which will show you how to access the online databases and make the best use of the technical resources available. Students will be expected to make extensive use of online resources available. Students will be expected to make extensive use of online journals.

Off Campus Access

Access is available to licensed electronic resources (books, databases and journals) to registered students and staff, irrespective of where they are located. Off campus access is not available for UK electronic legal deposit, eLD \(UK\), material.

College members linking to an electronic resource from outside Trinity College Dublin campus locations will select a resource from Stella Search. When they click on the link to the resource, they will be directed to a secure login page to authenticate with their College username and network login password. Please see the website for more information here.

Graduate Studies

The Graduate Studies Office offers centralised information on admissions, assessment, progression and funding. For more information about their services please see their website <https://www.tcd.ie/graduatestudies/>

Co-Curricular Activities

Central Societies Committee

The Central Societies Committee (CSC) is the sole body on campus with the power to grant recognition to societies. As the governing body of societies, the CSC represents their interests in dealings with College authorities. More information about College Societies and the CSC can be found at here.

TCD Graduate Student Union

The Graduate Students' Union (GSU) is an independent body which represent all postgraduate students in Trinity. Every postgraduate student is automatically a full member of the GSU upon entering their course. The GSU is available to assist you with academic and welfare issues and provides you with facilities including the 1937 Postgraduate Reading Room and the Postgraduate Common Room. They also schedule social events for postgraduate students. More information about the GSU can be found here.

IT Services

IT Services is responsible for the planning, delivery and support of the University's main computing facilities. This includes the University's network systems, web infrastructure, email and calendaring, management services, research IT and student computing facilities. Students are provided with full IT support via the IT Service Desk and a wide range of IT training is also available either online or face to face. More information about the supports and services provided by IT Services can be found on their website.

4. Emergency Procedures

Security Services provide a 24-hour service to the college community, 365 days a year. They are the liaison to the Fire, Garda and Ambulance services and all staff and students are advised to always telephone extension 1999 (+353 1 869 1999) in case of emergency.

Should you require any emergency or rescue services on campus, you must contact Security Services. This includes chemical spills, personal injury or first aid assistance.

It is recommended that all students save at least one emergency contact in their phone under ICE (In Case of Emergency).

For information on College Health and Safety please see the Estates and Facilities website.

5. Course Communication

On all course related matters, we will communicate with you primarily using your TCD email account. From time-to-time other services in college may use your telephone number or postal address. You can communicate with us using email or telephone. We will endeavour to reply to your communication promptly. Unless otherwise advised you can expect staff to respond to queries in normal business hours i.e. 9.00am – 4.00pm, Monday to Friday.

6. Key Locations

Programme Office

The School Office is located in Room 3063, The Arts Building, Trinity College Dublin. The opening hours are Monday to Friday 09:00-13:00 and 14:00-16:00.

Online Learning Environment

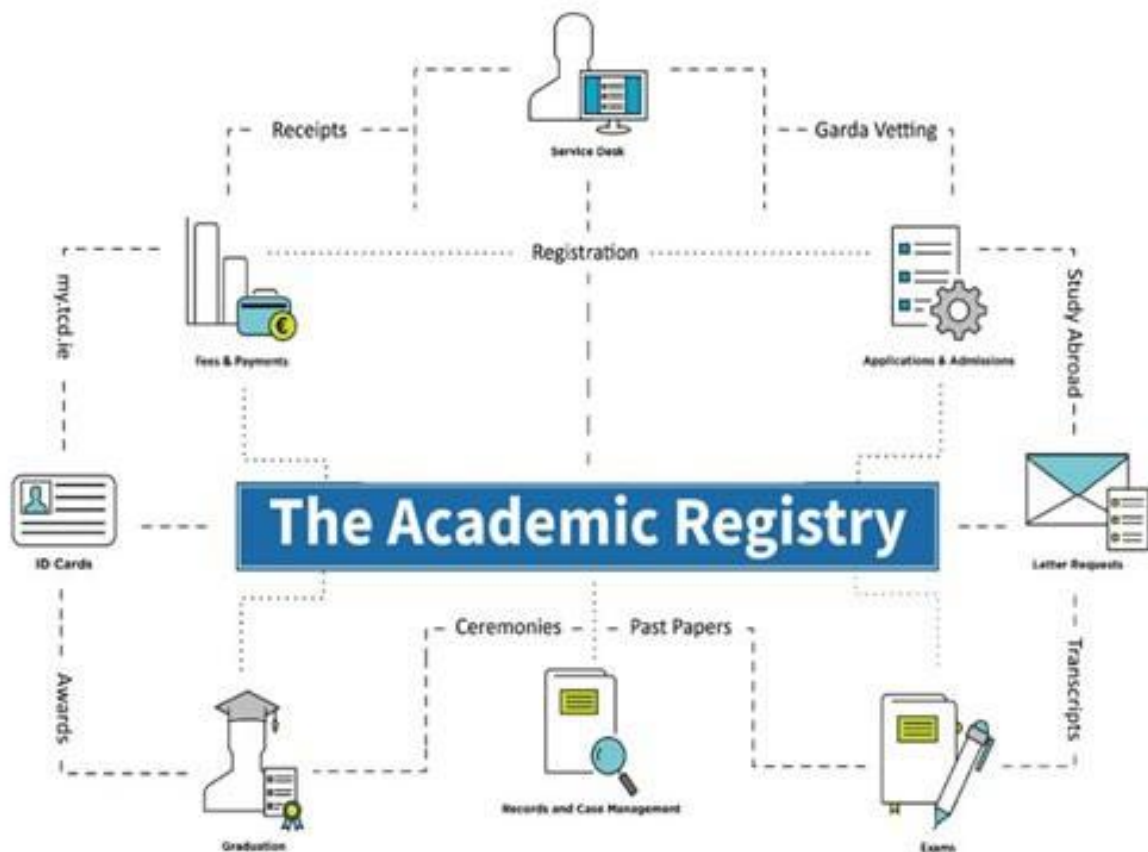

Blackboard Learn, which is located at mymodule.tcd.ie, is the College's Virtual Learning Environment (VLE). You can use this to access lecture notes, online assignments and other activities through Blackboard. The 'Assist' feature located on the left side of your Blackboard homepage provides information and tutorials on how to navigate the system. More information about Blackboard is available at <https://www.tcd.ie/CAPSL/resources/blackboard/>.

The Library of Trinity College Dublin

The Library supports the learning and research needs across all disciplines of the College; it is a major research library of international repute; it provides services to a wide range of external users and institutions. The subject librarian for the School of Social Work and Social Policy is Caroline Montgomery. The opening hours is available at <https://www.tcd.ie/library/opening-hours/>

Academic Registry

The mission of the Academic Registry is to provide key centralised administrative services to students and staff supporting the best possible Trinity experience. AR provides administrative support during a student's time in the University. Their vision is to be an integrated, flexible team with a professional service ethos supporting all stages of the student lifecycle.

More information about the Academic Registry can be found on their website.

7. Course Aims and Outcomes

The principal aim of the Postgraduate Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare is to enable practitioners and their employing organisations to meet the requirements of the Child Care Act 1991, the Children Act 2001, the Children and Families Relationship Act 2015 and the Children First Act 2015, by offering an enhanced knowledge base. It does this in a multi-disciplinary and inter-agency context and has a long-term aim to enhance co-operation and co-ordination by giving students a strong sense of the roles, responsibilities, skills and contributions of the entire child protection and welfare network. In line with the principles underpinning current child care legislation and policy, the course broadly reflects a number of practice principles such as; the paramountcy of child welfare, the benefits of early and sustained intervention, family support, the use of evidence to inform practice, the rights of children and the fullest participation possible of children and families in the child protection and welfare process. More specifically, the course is underpinned by three primary driving principles and philosophies of practice, as follows:

- Relationship Based Practice: Relation Based Practice (RBP) is based on the idea that positive change is best achieved in the context of relationship, wherein the professional seeks to achieve an element of reciprocity and friendship with clients, even in situations where conflict over shared understandings may be evident. While the roots of RBP lie in a questioning of the limitations of reason in producing good results in encounters between professionals and clients, there is, in fact, no absolute opposition between technical/rational and emotive/relational approaches to professional practices with families and children. Rather the evidence suggests that effective outcomes for clients represent a combination of research informed programmes delivered by professionals who are perceived by clients to be warm, engaged, concerned and empathetic in their approach. RBP challenges professionals to acknowledge the humanity of others, leading to an emotional as well as to an intellectual understanding of the challenges faced by clients in the context of their life histories. In Ireland an example of this type of approach may be found in the Signs of Safety programme which seeks to engage clients in developing a shared understanding of and response to, concerns regarding the welfare of children.

- Evidence Informed Practice: It is perfectly possible for good-hearted, well-trained, well-meaning staff, employing the most promising approaches and theories available to them, to make no difference at all to, or even worsen, the condition of those they are seeking to help. Essentially, using evidence competently in child protection and child welfare is a form of accurate tuning into the needs of service users and begs the questions: ‘how can I know that what I am going to do will make a difference and how can I know that I have made a difference?’ Evidence informed practice is therefore the conscientious, explicit and judicious use of known best practice in assessment, planning, intervention, review and evaluation in pursuit of achievable outcomes. More than that, evidence informed practice should be understood as leaving ample room for the constructive and imaginative judgement and knowledge by practitioners and service users who must be in constant interaction and dialogue with one another for most interventions to succeed. By stressing the importance of evidence in assessment, we are countering any propensity to human bias and error when constructing formulations on risk, need and required resources in child protection and child welfare.
- Child Centred Practice: Each child is a unique individual, each is a person in their own right, and each is entitled to full human rights. Nothing too startling or controversial in those statements, yet acting in child centred ways in support of these principles may not be so easy in practice for front-line professionals. Children may share certain characteristics, but each has their own lived experience. Each child has a distinctive life journey, their own unique story. Children who are siblings may have more in common, but even they retain their individuality and differences. The challenge for those working with children face to face is fundamentally to respect and uncover that individuality, and their set of experiences. Achieving this respect and insight is essential to reaching the right conclusions, making the right decisions for and with this child – decisions that fit with the real-life circumstances and concerns of this child. It is also important to know about children in general and to respect their collective status, but in working with a given child, a key issue is knowing how this child is, and how they are different. Central to understanding each child is respecting the significance of their history and circumstances. These frame the context - the web of relationships and influences (positive and negative) that plays out in their lives.

Being child centred means taking children seriously, not just children in general, but also this child.

It means having a meaningful rapport with a child and a grasp of their lived experience and reality. It also means having a connection with, and awareness of, key adults and peers in their lives. It means having a life course perspective for each child, recognising the importance not only of what is happening now, but also how the past impinges, and how the child's future potential remains waiting to be realised. Being child centred means being hopeful about, and working for, the possibility of a better future for this and every child. Being child centred at a policy level means recognising the importance of evidence about children's experience and outcomes, and especially the importance of intersectionality – how gender, ethnicity, disability and such cross cutting factors impact on children individually and shape their specific needs individually and collectively. It means formulating and monitoring policy with the child in mind.

In delivering on the principles outlined above, the course offers critical perspectives on current policies and practices in relation to child care issues, and adopts a clear policy of non-discrimination on grounds of class, culture, status or gender. It will keep students abreast of the changes and offer opportunities for discussion and debate.

Since its inception, the course has been modified to take cognisance of wider changes in the child care field. In addition, it has addressed the implications and recommendations of Irish child abuse inquiries as well as those from other jurisdictions. In line with the aspiration of the Government to promote community based family support and early intervention, the course aims to promote an ecological perspective on the assessment of the needs of children and families.

Course Structure & Teaching Methods

The Postgraduate Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare spans one academic year, during which students spend nine weeks part-time in the university. Full attendance at all classes is expected and attendance lists will be kept. Absence of greater than fifteen days on medical certification will require the student to apply to the Dean of Graduate Studies for permission to repeat all or part of the course.

Teaching normally takes place primarily on campus in 'face to face' mode, with occasionally some live streaming of lecturers into the classroom. It is important to note that for online classes, the online environment lacks the face-to-face element of regular discussions and interactions, where people can rely on body language and tone of voice to capture the full meaning. In the online environment, without these visual cues, miscommunications and misunderstandings can occur and some extra care when interacting can be warranted. Netiquette has slowly developed into an informal standard that helps transmit tone and emphasis when online and helps to address many of these communication issues.

Keeping the few simple rules of netiquette in mind will help ensure that what you say will be better understood by those listening and reading.

1. Typing in 'all caps' (all upper-case letters) denotes anger when communicating online. A message delivered in all caps is likely to be read as if sent in an aggressive tone. When possible, refrain from using all caps, even when emphasising certain words in sentences (italics may be used as an alternative for emphasis).
2. Emoticons, also known as emojis, are commonly used in online communication to transmit the tone in which the message was sent. Emoticons/emojis can take the form of a series of characters or be little images of faces which aid in the transmission of the sender's facial expression when communicating. For example:
 - 'I got a great result in my first assignment. Yay! 😊'
 - 'I am unable to attend this evening due to work commitments, sorry. :-(

These can be more useful than it first seems to ensure messages are received in the spirit in which they were sent.

3. Be careful when using irony and sarcasm online. This can be easily misinterpreted by those receiving your message.
4. Conduct debates and discussions in a respectful manner. Do not attempt to provoke personal debates and remember that it's better to reply when calm should you ever feel provoked. If you feel angry it is often best to take a moment to think about what you are posting online. Keep all messages on the topic and aim never to get personal. Healthy disagreement can be very informative and lead to key learning but be constructive in any criticism you give and always aim to be respectful.

Course Content

The course consists of six modules: Child Protection Perspectives and Practices, Interventions with Children and Families, Law, Contemporary Issues, Child Development and Research Methods. Each of the modules is comprised of courses on relevant topics; teaching and learning is through the media of lectures, seminars, workshops, online learning, demonstrations, class presentations and study time consisting of reading, researching, data collection and preparing assignments. The Postgraduate Diploma carries 60 ECTS (See Appendix C for a breakdown of ECTS).

Students are encouraged to develop research skills and are now required to make formal presentations of their project work, in order to promote the dissemination of their course work amongst colleagues in their own agencies. Opportunities for debate and discussion are a core component of the course.

Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the Postgraduate Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare, successful candidates should be able to demonstrate their ability:

1. To apply their knowledge, comprehension, critical awareness and problem-solving abilities, within the context of research or in the development of professional skills, in broader or multidisciplinary areas related to their fields of study.
2. To meet the requirements of the Child Care Act 1991, the Children Act 2001, the Children First Act 2015, the Children and Family Relationships Act and related legislation through increased knowledge of child care law.
3. To understand an increased base of theoretical and applied knowledge about child abuse.
4. To critically analyse current child protection and welfare policies and practices.
5. To understanding of the roles, responsibilities, skills and contributions of the entire child protection and welfare network.
6. To understanding of the impact of negative social factors on parental capacity and child development.
7. To complete a clearly written innovative practice project that demonstrates an integration of new learning to the student's work within his or her organization.

Course Contributors

Eimear Berry

Eimear is a teacher with a background in working with socially excluded children. She has taught at primary, post-primary and third level. From 1992 to 2002 she worked with the Dept of Education and Science's (DES) Traveller Education Advisory Service. She completed a M.Sc. in Child Protection and Welfare at TCD in 2003. Over the past 10 years she has worked with the DES Professional Development Service where, as part of her work, she designed and delivered training programmes in child protection and welfare to school principals, teachers, ancillary staff and student teachers. Eimear has tutored on the Postgraduate Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare since 2007 and is a member of the National Review Panel.

Sonya Bruen

Sonya Bruen is a Senior Associate with Mason Hayes & Curran where she practices in the area of Public Law with specific focus on Child Protection and Welfare. Mason Hayes & Curran is one of a number of firms acting for Tusla Child and Family Agency in Public Care Proceedings. Sonya qualified as a Social Worker from the undergraduate NQSW programme in Trinity College Dublin in 2000 and practiced as a social work practitioner for the SWAHB/ HSE for 6 years in the area of Child Protection and Welfare. Sonya re-trained as a solicitor in 2009 and has been working with Mason Hayes & Curran since 2011 where she is part of a team who advise and represent social work practitioners in District Court applications under the Child Care Act 1991.

Sinead Tobin

Sinead is an Assistant Professor in Social Work in the School of Social Work and Social Policy in Trinity College Dublin. She holds a Masters in Applied Social Research from Trinity College Dublin (2014), and a BSS from Trinity College Dublin (2006). Sinead's dissertation research was a qualitative study investigating young people's lived experiences of foster care placement breakdown. Sinead holds an innovative joint appointment position between Trinity College and Tusla, the Child and Family Agency. In her appointment to the School of Social Work and Social Policy, Sinead brings 17 years experience working as a Social Worker, Social Work Team Leader and Principal Social Worker predominantly in the fields of Child Protection and Welfare and Children in Care. She also has experience working within Adoption and Birth Information and Tracing Services.

Dr Louise Caffrey

Louise is an Assistant Professor of Social Policy and Director of the MSc Applied Social Research. Louise's research interests include hearing and representing children's voices, child contact, inspection of child and family services and policy and practice implementation and evaluation, including of Signs of Safety. Louise is also a recognised expert in systems approaches and realist evaluation. She uses these frameworks to investigate important questions around policy and practice implementation, including why reforms introduced are not having the intended results or why results are patchy.

Dr James Forbes

Director of Social Care in ChildVision, the National Education Centre for Blind Children, James is a qualified social care worker whose professional and research interests include the human rights of persons with disabilities, the social construction of disability and child protection and children with disabilities. He holds undergraduate degrees in Social Care, in Law (LLB) and in Education (BA Ed), a Masters in Education, a level 9 Diploma in Professional Regulation and a Masters in Law (LLM). He completed TCD's Postgraduate Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare in 2011 and the MSc in Child Protection and Welfare in 2012. A former lecturer in the Technological University, Dublin and an extern lecturer with the University of Worcester, James completed eight years as a professional member on both the Social Care Workers Registration Board and CORU's governing body, the Council, sitting on numerous fitness to practice hearings, chairing appeal hearings and chairing CORU's Nominations Committee. James' PhD is in human rights law, having been awarded a scholarship by Dublin City University's School of Government and Law.

Leanne Stapleton

Leanne has worked in the child protection and welfare context for over 13 years, as a qualified social worker since 2015 and previously with the ISPCC's 'Childline' service. Leanne has an Honours Degree in Social Science and a Master's Degree in Social Science (Social Work) from UCD. Leanne completed TCD's Postgraduate Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare in 2022, and the Msc in Child Protection in 2023. Leanne works as a Senior Social Worker in an acute paediatric hospital, supervises qualified social workers and is a regular Practice Teacher to social work students on placement. Leanne's practice and research interests include paediatric social admissions and multidisciplinary management of child protection concerns.

Professor Stephanie Holt

A graduate of the MSc in Child Protection and Welfare, Stephanie is Professor in Social Work in the School of Social Work & Social Policy, Trinity College Dublin. Her academic and research interests include domestic violence, intimate partner homicide and risk assessment, child contact, child care and family support. She has a particular interest in ascertaining and representing the voice of the child in research. Significant among her publications, she was co-editor of the first Routledge Handbook on Domestic Violence (2021), lead editor on the first European text on domestic violence (2018) and has also co-edited a double special edition of the Journal of Family Violence on the 'Causes, Consequences and Recovery for Children with Experiences of Domestic and Family Violence' (2025) <https://link.springer.com/collections/ddfjffdddf>.

Dr Nicola O'Sullivan

Nicola has worked in the child protection and welfare context for 20 years. Nicola has a Degree in Youth & Community Work from UCC, a Masters in Child Protection and Welfare from TCD, a Post Graduate Diploma in Clinical Supervision from DCU and a Professional Doctorate in Social Care and Emotional Wellbeing from the Tavistock and Portman NHS Foundation Trust. Nicola has completed training at the Anna Freud Centre on attachment, infancy and parenting. Nicola is a clinical supervisor to teams and individuals across social care and social work services in Ireland and in the UK. She is an independent consultant to teams and organisations and Lecturer at the Tavistock and Portman NHS Foundation Trust.

He completed his PhD in the School of Social Work and Social Policy at Trinity College Dublin in 2010. His research interests include the history and development of the Irish Juvenile Justice and Welfare systems. He is author of 'Wild Arabs and Savages', the first history of the Irish juvenile justice system, published by Manchester University Press. Paul is a member of the National Review Panel.

Susan Funcheon

A graduate of the MSc in Child Protection and Welfare, Susan Funcheon is a qualified social care worker who has focused her career on working with children and families over the past twenty years. This includes mainstream children-in-care residential services, High Support Services and Family Support and Family Welfare Conferencing. Susan currently lectures on the BA Hons in Social Care in DkIT and is the Practice Placement Coordinator for this programme. Her academic and research interests which include, systemic practice, children in care, family support, reunification and developments in social care. Recent publications focus on reunification for children in out-of-home care (2021), supporting birth parents (2022) and working with families (2023). Susan is also registered with MII and she continues to enjoy practicing community and family mediation.

Dr Susan Flynn

Susan is an Asst. Professor in the School of Social Work & Social Policy, Trinity College Dublin. She holds particular research interests in the areas of disability and child protection, critical disability studies, and disability in the context of austerity and poverty. She has also developed research interests in the area of social work practice. She has publications in a range of high ranking journals such as Disability & Society and the British Journal of Social Work. Her practice experience spans a range of cognate roles predominately centring around child protection and welfare social work and residential social care practice.

Dr Eavan Brady

Eavan Brady is an Assistant Professor in the School of Social Work & Social Policy, Trinity College Dublin. Eavan's PhD explored the educational pathways of care-experienced adults and used life course theory to examine the ways in which participants' life experiences shaped and influenced their education over time. Eavan's research expertise lies in the field of child welfare with a particular focus on the long-term well-being and outcomes of children in care and care leavers; she has published widely in international and national journals on these topics. Eavan is a registered social worker holding a Master's in Social Work and a Higher Diploma in Psychology. Prior to joining the School of Social Work & Social Policy, Eavan worked in the homelessness, housing, and mental health sectors in both Dublin and Toronto, Canada.

Dr Lynne Cahill

Dr Lynne Cahill is an Adjunct Assistant Professor at the School of Social Work and Social Policy, Trinity College Dublin. Her research focuses on LGBTQ experiences of intimate partner abuse, complex systems change and reform in homelessness, as well as database searching, literature reviews, and qualitative research techniques. Her current research examines implementation of a national programme response to homelessness, Housing First commissioned by the Service Reform Fund (SRF). The Service Reform Fund was established by the Department of Health, the Department of Housing, Local Government & Heritage, the Health Service Executive (HSE), the Atlantic Philanthropies, and Genio. The over arching aims of the SRF are to assist homelessness, disability, and mental health services transition to person- centred, recovery orientated support models.

Tara Keogh

Tara is a professionally qualified social worker with experience working with children across a range of child welfare and protection settings as a social worker, senior social worker and Guardian ad Litem. Tara qualified as a social worker in 2015 and has previous qualifications in Early Childhood Studies and Play Therapy. Tara also holds a Masters Degree in Attachment Studies from the University of Roehampton and additional training in Theraplay (level 1 and 2) and Dyadic Developmental Psychotherapy (level 1 and 2).

Tara has adopted skills and experience through the course of her work in a variety of settings including Tusla, domestic violence services, homeless and residential care services, an assessment and therapeutic service for children and their families, a parent and infant unit and parenting capacity assessment service, CAMHS and early intervention settings.

Dr Ruth Elliffe

Ruth is a qualified social worker, educator, and researcher with experience in both practice and academia. She is the former Programme Director of the Postgraduate Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare and continues to contribute as a course tutor. Ruth's professional background includes frontline work in the homeless and voluntary sectors. She is a practice tutor for social work students on professional placements and an experienced long-arm practice teacher. Currently, she teaches social work theory and skills development at postgraduate level. Her research interests focus on intersectionality and domestic abuse, with a particular passion for ensuring that children's voices remain central in debates on domestic violence and abuse. Alongside her academic work, Ruth is pursuing further studies in therapeutic interventions while working part-time within the School.

The European Credit Transfer and Accumulation System (ECTS) is an academic credit system based on the estimated student workload required to achieve the objectives of a module or programme of study. It is designed to enable academic recognition for periods of study, to facilitate student mobility and credit accumulation and transfer. The ECTS is the recommended credit system for higher education in Ireland and across the European Higher Education Area.

The ECTS weighting for a module is a measure of the student input or workload required for that module, based on factors such as the number of contact hours, the number and length of written or verbally presented assessment exercises, class preparation and private study time, laboratory classes, examinations, clinical attendance, professional training placements, and so on as appropriate. There is no intrinsic relationship between the credit volume of a module and its level of difficulty.

The European norm for full-time study over one academic year is 60 credits. 1 credit represents 20-25 hours estimated student input, so a 10-credit module will be designed to require 200-250 hours of student input including class contact time, assessments and examinations.

ECTS credits are awarded to a student only upon successful completion of the programme year. Progression from one year to the next is determined by the programme regulations. Students who fail a year of their programme will not obtain credit for that year even if they have passed certain components. Exceptions to this rule are one-year and part-year visiting students, who are awarded credit for individual modules successfully completed.

SS7130 Child Protection: Perspectives and Practice (10 ECTS)

Module Details
Module Code	SS7130
Module Title and Credits	Child Protection: Perspectives and Practice (10 ECTS)
Module Leader	Stephaine Holt
Module Overview and Objectives
This module consists of classes on child protection policy and practices. Module Code	SS7130 9.1.1
Module Title	Child Protection and Practices
Module Leader	Sinead Tobin
Module Overview and Objectives
This aim of this module is to provide a reflective and critically discursive space to experienced professionals working in the realm of child protection. Students will be presented with contemporary evidence governing the discipline and encouraged to examine if/how this evidence applies to policies and practice. Classes will adopt an interactive approach, with student purposively engaged in critical discourse to question assumptions, normative concepts and constructively challenge existing perspectives and practices. Students will be inspired to apply their enhanced knowledge, and critical perspectives to their work within the complex and evolving child protection systems in which they practice.
Learning Outcomes	At the end of this module the student should be able to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1: Identify and articulate new knowledge garnered about child protection practice, policy and systems 2: Identify and articulate professional and/or personal value-based perspective changes regarding child protection work 3: Critically appraise how they will apply the new knowledge in their working lives and how new perspectives will shape their future practice
Indicative Content
The module begins with an outline of the historical antecedents to today's child protection and welfare system including definitional issues, historical and cultural contexts and examination of the various influences shaping current work in child protection. Sessions are then devoted to interagency collaboration in child protection followed by specific sessions on neglect, physical abuse and emotional abuse. Guest lectures are provided on the topics of child sexual abuse and the impact of adverse childhood experiences throughout the life course. In the final session, students are provided with a reflective space to consider their experiences as child protection practitioners, and examine how learning from the module, and course, will shape future practices.

Module Title	Children, Domestic Violence and Child Protection & Welfare
Module Leader	Stephanie Holt
Module Overview and Objectives
This module explores the various contexts within which domestic violence and abuse occurs, locating this exploration against the backdrop of best child protection and welfare practice. While the impact of this experience on all those who live with violence is explored (children, women and men), focused and specific attention is given to the child's experience, taking a systemic and child centred approach to understanding impact and informing practice responses. Service user participation in classroom discussion is also facilitated and practitioner inputs enhance student understanding of the particular challenges and concerns for child protection and welfare practice.
Learning Outcomes	At the end of this module the student should be able to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Articulate a theoretical understanding of the prevalence, dynamics and nature of domestic violence and abuse. 2. Understand the relevance of domestic and domestic violence and abuse for child protection and welfare practice. 3. Appreciate the issues and debates child protection and welfare practitioners encounter when responding to domestic and abuse. 4. Describe the elements of good practice when responding to domestic and abuse. 5. Understand what it is like to be a child and to live with domestic violence and abuse.
Indicative Content
This module begins with an overview of domestic violence and abuse, including an examination of the prevalence, dynamics and different forms of violence and relationships in which it occurs. While the impact of this experience on all those who live with violence is explored (children, women and men), there will be a specific focus on the child's experience, drawing on their direct testimonies where appropriate. The impact of domestic abuse on parenting (both mothering and fathering) are also critiqued while the particular challenges and concerns for child protection and welfare in the context of post-separation contact are also explored. The issues and dilemmas facing child protection and welfare practitioners in responding to these complex issues, with a particular focus on Coercive Control, will be explored throughout the module.

SS7134 Child Development 10 ECTS

Module Details
Module Code	SS7134 9.5.
Module Title	Child Development and its Implications for the Welfare and Safety of Children (10 ECTS)
Module Leader	Tara Keogh and Nicola O'Sullivan
Module Overview and Objectives
This module spans the nine weeks of the programme and is grounded in the theoretical concepts of child development, parent infant mental health and attachment, across the developmental stages from infancy through to adolescence. The significance of these theoretical constructs for practice in child protection and welfare settings will be illuminated using applied case studies. The mental health of parents and infants is critical to their relationship development. Infant mental health is unique in its attention to early development and emerging relationships, requiring a dramatic shift in focus on the infant, the parent and their developing attachment relationship. It integrates diverse theories – including – attachment theory, psychoanalytic theory, neuroscience, and biology, and psychology, social, systemic and contextual theories. These lectures will explore key concepts surrounding the growth and development of the infant in their respective families and communities. The lectures will look at infancy as a key developmental stage both for the mother and infant. Attention will be paid to the mental health of the infant, the link between this and the mental wellbeing of their parent(s) and the challenges which emerge therein (the relationship). In addition students will consider working in complex settings and the impact on the worker/practitioner
Learning Outcomes	At the end of this module the student should be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ❖ Understand and hold a strong theoretical knowledge base on child development ❖ Articulate different psychological theories on child development and demonstrate the ability to discriminate and argue the merits and relevance of each ❖ Recognise the impact of parenting factors such as attachment or problem behaviours on child development

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ❖ Ability to assess the needs of children and young people at various developmental stages ❖ Understand ❖ Recognise best practice in working in direct work with children

Module Title	Child Development and Attachment Theory
Module Leader	Tara Keogh
Module Overview and Objectives
This course will provide a theoretical overview of the key concepts of Child Development and Attachment Theory. The influence of environment, family and caregiver relationships on the development of the child will be explored. Using clinical case presentations, the impact of neglect, relational trauma and attachment rupture/s on a child's attachment pattern will be discussed. There will be a focus on the development trauma and the function of behaviours. This will incorporate working with and thinking about parents and carers and their attachment strategies. The application of attachment theory to child protection and welfare within an organizational context will be examined. The process and techniques of Direct Work with and observation of children will be covered and students will have the opportunity to bring material from their own work for discussion. There will also be teaching around assessments and the overlaps between symptoms of trauma and psychiatric diagnoses.
Learning Outcomes	At the end of this module the student should be able to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Demonstrate knowledge of key concepts in child development and attachment theory, including secure, insecure, and disorganized attachment patterns. 2. Analyse the influence of environment, family, and caregiver relationships on children's developmental trajectories. 3. Critically evaluate the impact of neglect, relational trauma, and attachment ruptures on child development and attachment organisation. 4. Explain the functions of children's behaviours in the context of developmental trauma, regulation, and coping strategies. 5. Apply attachment theory to working with parents and carers, recognising how adult attachment strategies affect caregiving practices.

	6. Assess the relevance of attachment-informed practice in child protection and welfare settings, including within organisational contexts. 7. Develop skills in direct work and observation with children, using reflective and creative approaches to inform assessment and intervention.

Module Title	Parent Infant Mental Health and Child Protection
Module Leader	Dr. Nicola O’Sullivan
Module Overview and Objectives
In the child protection context, the mental health of parents and infants is critical to their relationship development. Infant mental health is unique in its attention to early development and emerging relationships, requiring a dramatic shift in focus on the infant, the parent and their developing attachment relationship. It integrates diverse theories – including – attachment theory, psychoanalytic theory, neuroscience, and biology, and psychology, social, systemic and contextual theories. Parent Infant mental health is a distinctive literature that unites theory with effective clinical practice.
Learning Outcomes	These lectures will explore key concepts surrounding the growth and development of the infant in their respective families and communities. The lectures will look at infancy as a key developmental stage both for the mother and infant. Attention will be paid to the mental health of the infant, the link between this and the mental wellbeing of their parent(s) and the challenges which emerge therein (the relationship). The lectures will consider the topic – working in complex contexts, taking a look at the impact of the work on the worker.

SS7135: Research Methods for DPP 20 ECTS

Module Details
Module Code	SS 7135
Module Title and Credits	(10 ECTS)
Module Leader	Dr Lynne Cahill
Module Overview and Objectives
This module empowers students to systematically discover, access, and critically appraise scholarly literature across disciplines. Through hands-on practice with key databases and open-access repositories, students will develop advanced search strategies using keywords, controlled vocabularies, Boolean logic, and field-specific filters. The course covers efficient management of citations and full texts using leading reference tools, as well as documentation of reproducible search protocols. By module completion, learners will be able to design rigorous literature searches, critically analyse findings, and set up automated alerts to stay current with emerging research – that will inform the Demonstration Practice Project (DPP).
Learning Outcomes	At the end of this module the student should be able to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1.Design and Execute Advanced Search Strategies <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Demonstrate proficiency in identifying keywords, synonyms, controlled vocabularies, and applying Boolean operators, truncation, and field-specific filters to retrieve high-quality literature. • Graduate Attributes: Information Literacy, Critical Thinking 2.Database in class practical's <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Introduction to database searching • Graduate Attributes: Information Literacy, Organisation skills, enhanced search capacities. 3.Manage and Organise References Effectively <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Utilise leading reference management tools (e.g., EndNote) to import, deduplicate, annotate, categorize, and cite literature seamlessly in academic writing. • Graduate Attributes: Digital Literacy, Organisation skills 4.Document and Reproduce Search Protocols <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Record detailed search logs, construct reproducible search strings to ensure transparency and replicability of literature reviews. • Graduate Attributes: research integrity, attention to details 5.Collaborate with Information Specialists <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Engage effectively with subject librarians to refine search strategies. • Graduate Attributes: Communication, Teamwork

The following learning strategies will be utilised to apply the theory in this module:

- Lectures, in-class database search demonstrations
- Student in-class search strategy practical's
- Student in-class database search
- Searching, identifying, appraising, analysing and synthesising scholarly works in the social sciences

Assessment

While there is no module assessment, this module provides the research foundations students need to complete their final DPP output. By its completion, students will be able to design and execute rigorous literature searches, critically appraise and synthesise findings, and situate their own research within the broader scholarly landscape.

10. Twinning Visits

As part of Module SS7132, Interventions with Children and Families, each student in the class will spend a day shadowing a colleague on a typical day in their workplace. In turn, that student will reciprocate by hosting a return visit to their workplace by the other student - thus the title of twinning for the exercise. In choosing their twinning partner, students should select a classmate from a different discipline and a different employer. Arrangements for the twinning day are made between the students themselves. In the course of the twinning day the students spend time on site, with his/her fellow student completing the hosts work agenda for the day, for example working with clients or attending meetings etc.

The point of the exercise is to promote greater mutual understanding across disciplines. One session each week will be spent on presentations given by class members, the aim of which is to highlight the individual's own perspective on the nature of the service in the agency he/she visited, and to process inter-agency and inter-professional issues. Occasionally a student may observe a piece of 'best practice' that may be worthy of sharing with classmates, or perhaps he/she might gain new insight into some presumption pertaining to the work of the classmate. The purpose of the twinning exercise is not to act as a critic of any service but to use the opportunity as a unique learning exercise in the context of the overarching aim of the course i.e. to promote understanding of the breadth and depth of child protection and welfare services and multi-disciplinary and inter-agency work.

11. Academic Writing

As a postgraduate student, you will have to demonstrate your ability to produce essays and assignments based on investigative research, critique and analysis. It can be challenging to produce written work for academic purposes, particularly if it has been a while since you last had to do so. However, academic writing is a skill that is worth mastering. There is a common form to academic writing that can be used across multiple assessment types. It is worth getting to know this form and reproducing it in your own work. There are many resources available to help and guide you on writing at a postgraduate level.

Please explore this resource: http://www.tcd.ie/Student_Counselling/student-learning/postgraduate/topics/writing/index.php.

Plagiarism

Plagiarism of any kind is unacceptable in academic work and is penalised. To ensure that you have a clear understanding of what plagiarism is, how Trinity deals with cases of plagiarism, and how to avoid it, you will find a repository of information at <http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism>

We ask you to take the following steps:

- i. Visit the online resources to inform yourself about how Trinity deals with plagiarism and how you can avoid it at <http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism>. You should also familiarize yourself with the 2025-26 Calendar entry on plagiarism and the sanctions which are applied which is located at <http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism/calendar> (also set out below).
- ii. Complete the 'Ready, Steady, Write' online tutorial on plagiarism at <http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism/ready-steady-write>. Completing the tutorial is compulsory for all students.
- iii. Familiarise yourself with the declaration that you will be asked to sign when submitting course work at <http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism/declaration>
- iv. Contact your College Tutor, your Course Director, or your Lecturer if you are unsure about any aspect of plagiarism.

University of Dublin Calendar Part III, 66-73

Plagiarism

66. General

'It is clearly understood that all members of the academic community use and build on the work and ideas of others. It is commonly accepted also, however, that we build on the work and ideas of others in an open and explicit manner, and with due acknowledgement. Plagiarism is the act of presenting the work or ideas of others as one's own, without due acknowledgement. Plagiarism can arise from deliberate actions and also through careless thinking and/or methodology. The offence lies not in the attitude or intention of the perpetrator, but in the action and in its consequences. It is the responsibility of the author of any work to ensure that he/she does not commit plagiarism. Plagiarism is considered to be academically fraudulent, and an offence against academic integrity that is subject to the disciplinary procedures of the University.

67. Examples of Plagiarism

Plagiarism can arise from actions such as:

- (a) copying another student's work;*
- (b) enlisting another person or persons to complete an assignment on the student's behalf;*
- (c) procuring, whether with payment or otherwise, the work or ideas of another;*
- (d) quoting directly, without acknowledgement, from books, articles or other sources, either in printed, recorded or electronic format, including websites and social media;*
- (e) paraphrasing, without acknowledgement, the writings of other authors.*

Examples (d) and (e) in particular can arise through careless thinking and/or methodology where students:

- (i) fail to distinguish between their own ideas and those of others;*
- (ii) fail to take proper notes during preliminary research and therefore lose track of the sources from which the notes were drawn;*
- (iii) fail to distinguish between information which needs no acknowledgement because it is firmly in the public domain, and information which might be widely known, but which nevertheless requires some sort of acknowledgement;*
- (iv) come across a distinctive methodology or idea and fail to record its source. 3*

All the above serve only as examples and are not exhaustive.

68. Plagiarism in the Context of Group Work

Students should normally submit work done in co-operation with other students only when it is done with the full knowledge and permission of the lecturer concerned.

Without this, submitting work which is the product of collusion with other students may be considered to be plagiarism. When work is submitted as the result of a Group Project, it is the responsibility of all students in the Group to ensure, so far as is possible, that no work submitted by the group is plagiarised. In order to avoid plagiarism in the context of collaboration and groupwork, it is particularly important to ensure that each student appropriately attributes work that is not their own.

69. Self-Plagiarism

No work can normally be submitted for more than one assessment for credit. Resubmitting the same work for more than one assessment for credit is normally considered self-plagiarism.

70. Avoiding Plagiarism

Students should ensure the integrity of their work by seeking advice from their lecturers, tutor or supervisor on avoiding plagiarism. All schools and departments must include, in their handbooks or other literature given to students, guidelines on the appropriate methodology for the kind of work that students will be expected to undertake. In addition, a general set of guidelines for students on avoiding plagiarism is available at: <http://tcd.ie/libguides.com/plagiarism>

71. If plagiarism as referred to in paragraph (1) above is suspected, the Director of Teaching and Learning (Postgraduate) or his/her designate will arrange an informal meeting with the student, the student's Supervisor and/or the academic staff member concerned, to put their suspicions to the student and give the student the opportunity to respond. Students may nominate a Graduate Students' Union representative or PG advisor to accompany them to the meeting. The student will be requested to respond in writing stating his/her agreement to attend such a meeting and confirming on which of the suggested dates and times it will be possible for them to attend. If the student does not in this manner agree to attend such a meeting, the Director of Teaching and Learning (Postgraduate), or designate, may refer the case directly to the Junior Dean, who will interview the student and may implement the procedures as referred to in Section 5

(Other General Regulations).

If the Director of Teaching and Learning (Postgraduate) forms the view that plagiarism has taken place, he/she must decide if the offence can be dealt with under the summary procedure set out below. In order for this summary procedure to be followed, all parties noted above must be in agreement and must state their agreement in writing to the Director of Teaching and Learning (Postgraduate) or designate. If one of the parties to the informal meeting withholds his/her written agreement to the application of the summary procedure, or if the facts of the case are in dispute, or if the Director of Teaching and Learning (Postgraduate) feels that the penalties provided for under the summary procedure below are inappropriate given the circumstances of the case, he/she will refer the case directly to the Junior Dean, who will interview the student and may implement the procedures set out in Section 5 (Other General Regulations).

72. If the offence can be dealt with under the summary procedure, the Director of Teaching and Learning (Postgraduate) will recommend one of the following penalties:

(a) Level 1: Student receives an informal verbal warning. The piece of work in question is inadmissible. The student is required to rephrase and correctly reference all plagiarised elements. Other content should not be altered. The resubmitted work will be assessed and marked without penalty;

(b) Level 2: Student receives a formal written warning. The piece of work in question is inadmissible. The student is required to rephrase and correctly reference all plagiarised elements. Other content should not be altered. The resubmitted work will receive a reduced or capped mark depending on the seriousness/extent of plagiarism;

(c) Level 3: Student receives a formal written warning. The piece of work in question is inadmissible. There is no opportunity for resubmission.

Provided that the appropriate procedure has been followed and all parties in (6) above are in agreement with the proposed penalty, the Director of Teaching and Learning (Postgraduate) should in the case of a Level 1 offence, inform the Course Director and, where appropriate, the Course Office. In the case of a Level 2 or Level 3 offence, the Dean of Graduate Studies must be notified and requested to approve the recommended penalty. The Dean of Graduate Studies may approve or reject the recommended penalty, or seek further information before making a decision. If he/she considers that the penalties provided for under the summary procedure are inappropriate given the circumstances of the case, he/she may also refer the matter directly to the Junior Dean who will interview the student and may implement the procedures as referred to under conduct and college.

Notwithstanding his/her decision, the Dean of Graduate Studies will inform the Junior Dean of all notified cases of Level 2 and Level 3 offences accordingly. The Junior Dean may nevertheless implement the procedures as set out in Section 5 (Other General Regulations).

73. If the case cannot normally be dealt with under summary procedures, it is deemed to be a Level 4 offence and will be referred directly to the Junior Dean. Nothing provided for under the summary procedure diminishes or prejudices the disciplinary powers of the Junior Dean under the 2010 Consolidated Statutes.'

When using the work of others' you must either:

- i) quote their words directly in quotation marks and provide page numbers, or
- ii) paraphrase them.

Either way, an explicit citation of the work being referred to must be given. To fail to do this is to risk being accused of plagiarism. A guide to referencing is available on the College Library website at <http://www.tcd.ie/Library/help/howtocite.php>. In order to support students in understanding what plagiarism is and how they can avoid it, the University has created an online central repository to consolidate all information and resources on plagiarism. Up to now, information has been spread across many sites, which can lead to confusion. Through the provision of a central repository, it is hoped to communicate this information to students in a clearer and more coherent manner. The central repository is being hosted by the Library and is located at:
<http://tcd-ie.libguides.com/plagiarism>.

Proceed on the general assumption that any work to be submitted for assessment should in fact be your own work. It ought not to be the result of collaboration with others unless your lecturer gives clear indication that, for that assignment, joint work or collaborative work is required or acceptable. In this latter situation, you should specify the nature and extent of the collaboration and the identity of your co-workers.

It is important to understand that stating that your intention was not to cheat and that you did not understand what constituted plagiarism will not be accepted as a defense. It is the action and not the intention that constitutes plagiarism.

The University has established regulations in relation to suspected cases of plagiarism and other forms of cheating. The University's full statement on Plagiarism is set out in The University of Dublin Calendar, Part 1 and Part 2. Students are strongly advised to read these documents carefully and follow all conventions described.

The Student Counselling Service provides seminars to help students in referencing, using information ethically, academic integrity and time management.

Generative Artificial Intelligence (GenAI)

School of Social Work and Social Policy on Generative AI

Generative Artificial Intelligence (GenAI) refers to artificial intelligence systems capable of generating new content, ideas, or data that mimic human-like creativity. It uses deep learning algorithms to produce outputs ranging from text and images to music and code, based on patterns it learns from vast datasets. GenAI uses large language models to analyse and understand the structure of the data it's trained on, enabling the generation of novel content. Examples include ChatGPT, Google Bard, CoPilot, Grammarly and Notion.

The University recognises that GenAI offers new opportunities for teaching, learning, assessment and research. It also recognises that these technologies present challenges and risks, including to academic integrity, ethics, student learning, privacy, impartiality, intellectual property and sustainability.

The purpose of this policy is to outline the core principles of the School of Social Work and Social Policy's approach to student use of GenAI. This policy compliments the College level policy on GenAI while taking into account the unique needs and demands of our School.

Encouraging the development of GenAI literacy

In line with College policy, the School is committed to supporting the opportunity for students and staff to become GenAI literate and fluent, thereby helping them to navigate and respond to the challenges and risks of GenAI in order to harness the potential of GenAI to enhance teaching, learning, assessment and research – and to be prepared for future challenges as these technologies evolve.

Appreciating what GenAI is and is not good for

Within a research context there are some tasks which GenAI is particularly useful for. For example, generating statistical code or as an aid when brainstorming questions to ask participants in a survey or interview.

GenAI may be useful when undertaking discursive writing such as an essay but only when used with discretion and understood as an assistive tool.

For a research literature review for a Capstone, Masters or PhD dissertation it is advisable to use GenAI sparingly, if at all. It may be useful as a way to check grammar and spelling and may sometimes be used to generate ideas but the deep knowledge of the literature that comes from systematic searching, independent reading and the exertion involved in shaping it into your final review are important parts of the research process and will play an important role in deciding the aims and value of your research.

Using GenAI is not recommended for reflective writing, which is often deeply personal and requires use of self, or for applied case study analysis (both very relevant for our School).

Understanding the limitations of GenAI

A crucial part of GenAI literacy is understanding the risks and limitations of these technologies, particularly when used for academic purposes.

While GenAI tools can generate very eloquent, convincing text, they do not store facts and knowledge, rather they generate outputs based on probabilities. Thus, GenAI is prone to making factual errors (called ‘hallucinations’) which are nonetheless very convincingly presented. This is where academic/professional judgement and domain expertise are very important. If you are using GenAI, you need to double check the information it is giving you as it will present information which is simply not true. Therefore, it is crucial for any user to fact-check any output from a GenAI tool. Bear in mind that your module coordinator will be a domain expert and hence very likely to spot non-existent or miscited sources.

As well as factual errors users should be aware that GenAI tools can exhibit bias as a result of bias embedded in its training data. GenAI does not engage in systematic and rigorous evaluation of research evidence and should not be used as a substitute.

GenAI has proven to be a very effective tool for exploring information, suggesting activities or plans appropriate to a problem or task, or generating ideas or materials through interactive dialogue.

Ensuring that GenAI use does not impede student learning

Inappropriate use of GenAI can impede student progress in terms of acquiring the Trinity education graduate attributes (independent thinking, effective communication, responsible action, and continuous development) and achieving the learning outcomes of any given module. For their own benefit, it is strongly recommended that students follow the advice of module leads about when to use and not use GenAI tools.

Ensuring that GenAI use complies with academic integrity

Aligned with the College Statement on Artificial Intelligence and Generative AI in Teaching, Learning, Assessment & Research \(2024\), the use of GenAI is permitted unless otherwise stated. Where the output of GenAI is used to inform a student's document or work output, this usage should be acknowledged and appropriately cited, as per Library guidelines on acknowledging and referencing GenAI. From an academic integrity perspective, if a student generates content from a GenAI tool and submits it as his/her/their own work (i.e. fails to acknowledge and appropriately cite the use of GenAI), it is considered plagiarism, which is defined as academic misconduct in accordance with College Academic Integrity Policy.

Note any long verbatim quotation (e.g. more than one paragraph), even with citation, may be considered inappropriate or poor practice in student assessment documents and publications.

Awareness of ethical issues in the use of GenAI

The use of GenAI tools can have important ethical implications which users should be aware of.

The training and use of GenAI systems consume significant amounts of energy and resources, leading to sustainability concerns.

Many GenAI tools are trained on vast amounts of data gleaned from a wide variety of sources. However, the training of such tools is not transparent and the exact extent of their training data and sources remains unknown. Some major GenAI providers have been sued for copyright infringement.

Some GenAI tools that have been trained on material on the open web are likely to have ingested protected personal data, copyright-protected content, copyright-infringing content, misinformation, disinformation, hate speech, defamation, and all manner of other unlawful content. Additionally, some GenAI tools harvest information from user prompts including contextual information from users' interaction with GenAI tools, leading to privacy and intellectual property concerns. GenAI tools vary in regard to the extent of these concerns.

Avoiding unlawful ways of using GenAI

Given the nature of the work of the School of Social Work and Social Policy it is very important that all staff and students understand the ways in which GenAI can be used unlawfully. For students this is important both for their time in College and in employment afterwards.

Most GenAI tools harvest inputs and use interactions with users for their systems development. Therefore personal, private or sensitive information about colleagues, students or clients / service users should never be used as part of inputs, prompts, queries, instructions and other interactions when using GenAI tools. Even where sharing such private information is not necessarily unlawful, it is against College regulations.

Student work (submitted assessments and contributions) are considered private information, and are not allowed to be uploaded into a third-party GenAI tool for any reason. Similarly, content which is confidential in Trinity or confidential to your user's studies or work (research, teaching or administrative) or for which you do not own the copyright, or which is not publicly available, should not be used in creating inputs, prompts, queries, instructions, contextual information, and other interactions for GenAI.

Using GenAI appropriately on work placement

Students on placement outside of the university should familiarise themselves with and adhere at all times to policies on the use of GenAI in their host organisations.

When preparing placement related coursework, students should never, for any reason, input confidential service user information including, names, locations, case notes or any identifying information into any GenAI tool.

12.Coursework Requirements

Assessment

To be eligible for the award of the Postgraduate Diploma in Child Protection and Welfare, students must have had full attendance and have passed all written assignments. All course work must be submitted by the specified date and extensions will only be granted in exceptional circumstances. Students who fail any piece of work may (at the discretion of the Head of Department) be permitted to re-submit within one month of their work being returned to them. Assessment is carried out throughout the year, and there are no examinations. Students are assessed on the basis of attendance, written assignments and a practice-based project. Non-assessed work includes an article review, and ‘twinning visits’ where students visit the agency of a course colleague from a different background. In addition, small groups of students undertake joint visits to childcare agencies or organisations of their choice, occasionally outside the Republic, and formally present a profile of the service to the class.

External Examiner

The work of the students is moderated by an External Examiner appointed by the University. For 2025/26 Professor Kate Morris from the University of Sheffield will act as external examiner for the course.

Assessment Deadlines:

Essays

Students are required to complete and pass three essays as part of the assessment of their course work. The pass mark is 40%.

Each essay should not exceed 2,500 words and the word count should be shown on the cover page. If the word limit is exceeded, this will result in a penalty reduction of 5%.

You will need to submit the following:

- ❖ 1 electronic copy submitted to Blackboard

Students are expected to complete and submit all course work assignments on time.

Please include a cover sheet on each assignment with your name, student number, tutors name, and assignment details (you may choose your own format).

Essay 1 Perspectives on Child Protection

Submission date: Monday 1st December 202

Pick one of the following topics-

1. Intergenerational aspects of violence and abuse: challenges for child protection and welfare work
2. Recognising and responding to children living with domestic violence and abuse: challenges for child protection and welfare work
3. Contemporary developments in child welfare/protection practice: challenges and opportunities
4. The case for early intervention

Whichever essay is picked should illustrate an evidence-based understanding of the topic; it should appropriately reference the Irish legal and policy context and include recent Irish and international research on child protection and welfare. Essays should contain only a minimum amount of description and should take a theoretical and critically reflective approach to the topic. Students should draw on their own professional experience in order to integrate theory and practice. Students should discuss their essay with tutors in Week 2.

Essay 2 Practicing Child Protection and Welfare: A Case Example

Submission Date: Monday 9th February 2026

This essay focuses on the practice of providing or managing a child protection and welfare service (or role as part of a bigger service) and requires you to use a case example from your work to illustrate how you utilise your 'personal framework for practice', e.g. how you integrate and reconcile formal knowledge, professional experience, personal values, the norms of your organisation and the broader regulatory framework. The essay offers students an opportunity to outline the models of work that are most relevant and useful as well as the theories, principles and perspectives that shape their practice. Overall, the essay should demonstrate their means of coping with conflict, and their methods for resolving dilemmas. It should also demonstrate values and attitudes in relation to child protection and welfare work. Students will be expected to show how they incorporate principles of inclusiveness and the paramountcy of child welfare in their work and critically evaluate their own organisational systems and structures. Links must be made between practice and relevant literature.

Essay 3 The Law of Child Protection and Welfare

Submission date: Tuesday 7th April, 2026

40-49	Limited knowledge and evidence of reading, may contain inaccuracies.	Poor application of theory and research. Literature referenced rather than used to make analytical points. Descriptive.	Tendency to assert points without evidence. Little evidence that alternative views have been considered.	Lacking organisation and structure. Inaccurate referencing, spelling and punctuation errors.
Fail/re-submit	Little or no evidence of reading, may contain inaccuracies.	Descriptive, no effort to link knowledge with policy/practice.	Little or no attempt to form arguments or show original thinking.	Lacking organisation and structure. Inaccurate referencing, spelling and punctuation errors.

13. General Guidelines for the Presentation of Written Work

All essays should show evidence of wide reading, including the use of recent sources. Students should demonstrate an ability to critically assess theories and apply theory to practice. The essay should be clearly introduced and concluded, the introduction demonstrating an understanding of the essay title, highlighting key issues to be covered, and outlining the approach to be taken in the essay. Points should be well developed, using the literature as well as examples from work experience. Headings can add greatly to the clarity of the presentation. The final conclusion should briefly review and points raised in the essay, and draw out the implications of your arguments or assertions. All names and identifying information concerning clients and colleagues should however be disguised. Credit will also be given for work that shows breadth as well as depth and that draws appropriately on material addressed in other courses.

Loose generalisations such as "research shows that" must be avoided. All statements and assertions must be complemented by evidence e.g. a piece of published work, or an official source of information, to support them.

Referencing is very important and must be done carefully. Your bibliography should direct a reader straight to the source that you have quoted, and sources may be checked by examiners from time to time.

Use the Harvard style referencing convention as follows:

After a quotation in the body of your essay, give (in brackets) the author's surname and date of publication. If you are using a direct quote or discussing a specific idea or argument, give the page number inside the brackets e.g. (Parton, 1991:23).

At the end of the work, before the appendices, give a full bibliography detailing all sources that you have cited, following a recognised convention such as the Harvard referencing system (Handouts will be provided). Use single line spacing.

- ❖ Arrange the works alphabetically by author, and work by the same author should be arranged chronologically. In the case of more than one work being published in the same year by the author, distinguish these as 1991, 1991b and so on. Be sure to give the original date of publication even if you use a later edition.
- ❖ Follow the author's name with the date and name of the reference.
- ❖ If the reference is a book, italicise the title, then give the place of publication and the publisher.
- ❖ If the reference is an article, give the title in inverted commas, followed by (i.e. journal or book).
- ❖ If the source is a journal, give the name of the journal in italics, followed by the volume number and page numbers.
- ❖ If the source is a book or collection of essays, begin as for (d) but then and from: followed by the editors initials, surname (ed.) the title of the book or collection (italicised), place of publication, publisher and page numbers.
- ❖ Every work that you refer to in your assignments must appear in your bibliography, as should all the sources you have used but not mentioned directly.

Examples:

(book) Parton, N. (1991). Governing The Family: Child Care, Child Protection and the State. Basingstoke, MacMillan.

(article) Wattam, C. (1997). 'Is the Criminalisation of Child Harm and Injury in the Interests of the Child?'. Children and Society, 11: 97-107.

(paper) Stevenson, O. (1997). 'Child Welfare: The Exercise of Professional Judgements by Social Workers'. Paper presented to the BASPCAN Congress, July 1997, Edinburgh.

(collection) O'Higgins, K. (1993). 'Surviving Separation: Traveller Children in Substitute Care'. In H. Ferguson, R. Gilligan and R. Torode, (eds). Surviving Childhood Adversity: Issues for Policy and Practice. Dublin, Social Studies Press, pp.146-156.

If other conventions are used they must be consistent in format. Marks will be deducted if referencing conventions are not followed, or if references are omitted from the bibliography.

Plagiarism ('cogging') is the unacknowledged use of other people's ideas and is unacceptable in academic work and is heavily penalised. Always acknowledge any author or source, even if unpublished, whose ideas you cite or paraphrase. Unless essential, avoid quoting long or multiple passages from a text and always use quotation marks and specific page references. Recommended word lengths must be observed. Very short work or work that exceeds the recommended length by more than 20% will be returned for revision. Please show the word length on the title page.

Assessed written work must be typed - in 1.5 spacing - on one side of the paper with adequate margins on each side of the page. The word count must be shown on the title page. Pages should be clearly numbered, as tutors who are marking assignments provide written comments which refer specifically to your text. All written work should be proof-read before submission to avoid mistakes in spelling, grammar and referencing. Careless presentation, particularly in relation to referencing, reduces the impact of the content and loses marks.

Students are strongly encouraged to give or send drafts of their written work to their tutors prior to final submission.

14. Demonstration Practice Project (DPP) – Module SS7135

Submission date: Wednesday 27th May 2026

14. Demonstration Practice Project (DPP) – Module SS7135

The DPP is designed to serve as a bridge between the college-based element of the course and the student's own work. The student is required to carry out a project which takes an existing issue within their organisation with relevance to their work with and obligations to, children and families. The issue should have a child welfare and/or protection dimension. While in previous years the DPP represented an opportunity for some students to undertake a small piece of research within their organisations, in recent times the requirements of Research Ethics Committees and associated long timetables have rendered this largely unpractical, if not impossible. The teaching and guidance offered to students by lecturers and tutors is now directed towards equipping them to undertake desk-based research (which does not require the approval of Ethics Committees). Such research is designed to help the student systematically identify the existing research and policy literature, and employ the findings drawn from this to inform their analysis as to how, going forward, such gleaned knowledge might inform professional practices and organisational policies. It is anticipated that this process may assist not only the learning of the student but also that of their colleagues, thus the title 'demonstration practice'. The project is therefore intended to exemplify the course's commitment to making a difference in the workplace, by combining academic learning with practical application in the 'real world'.

The Demonstration Practice Project has the following objectives:

- ❖ to help the student develop skills in the systematic identification research literature and in thematic analysis
- ❖ to promote solutions drawn from the evidence base (as represented in the research literature) to address 'real world' workplace issues
- ❖ to encourage the active dissemination of information about good practice within the student's organisation and more widely.

The concluding chapter of the project is important and should be reasonably substantial. It will be pivotal in demonstrating how the aims of the project have been met. Students will be required to reflect at this point on the implications of their findings both for themselves and for their organisation, i.e., how the process of conducting the project and reaching their conclusions has modified their attitudes and their practice, how it may effect change in their organisations and how they plan to disseminate their findings.

Deadlines for submission of DPP work

Students should begin planning the Demonstration Practice Project from the outset of the course, in consultation with their tutors. A series of written submissions must be made to tutors which reflect the student's attempts to clarify and put shape on the project.

Students must submit the first chapter of their DPPs on Monday 5th January. This chapter will outline the topic, the research question and research aim and objectives, its policy context, why it is considered a suitable subject for study, which aspects of it will be considered. This chapter will also provide an overview of theory and research evidence relevant to the topic under study and provide a context as to why the issue under consideration is important in the professional and agency contexts. It should also signpost the remainder of the written project, i.e., provide a brief outline of chapters.

The methodology chapter should be submitted on Monday 2nd March, outlining the research methods chosen, this will involve desk-based research, involving a systematic identification and analysis of the relevant literature. It is important that this process is fully described.

The analysis/findings from the extended literature review or critical policy analysis must be submitted on Friday 1st May. This should include a synthesis of key findings and themes identified in the literature as relevant to the research question.

A full draft of the project will be due for submission to tutors on Friday 15th May, and each student will make a 15-minute presentation of their project during the week of May 6th to 9th.

The final date for submission of the completed projects is Wednesday 27th May 2026 by 4.00pm.

The importance of tutorial support for the success of this exercise cannot be emphasised too strongly and the onus lies with the students to make the most of this source of support which is readily available as part of the course package.

An example of the layout and title page of the DPP is in Appendix A. For advice and requirements in relation to general writing skills, please see Section 14.

16. Guidelines for Preparing your DPP

Writing the report: General checklist (adapted from J. Bell, 1987)

1	Set deadlines	Allocate dates for sections, subsections and the whole report. Keep an eye on your schedule
2	Write regularly
3	Create a rhythm of work	Don't stop to check references. Make a note of what has to be checked, but don't stop
4	Write up a section as soon as it is ready	Try to produce a draft of the literature review as soon as the bulk of your reading is completed
5	Stop at a point from which it is easy to resume writing
6	Leave space for revisions	Use one side of the page only. Try to keep to one paragraph per page
7	Publicise your plans	You may need a little help from your friends to meet the deadlines
8	Check that all essential sections have been covered	Outline of the research, review of previous work, statement of the scope and aims of the investigation, description of procedures, statement of results, discussion, summary and conclusions, reference, abstract
9	Check length is according to institutional requirements	You don't want to be failed on a technicality
10	Don't forget the title page
11	Any acknowledgements and thanks?

12	Include headings where possible	Anything to make it easier for readers to follow the structure will help
13	Number tables and figures and provide titles	Check tables and figures for accuracy, particularly after typing
14	Make sure all quotations are acknowledged	Check that quotations are presented in a consistent format
15	Provide a list of references	Unless instructed otherwise, include only times to which reference is made in the report. Check that a consistent system is used and that there are no omissions
16	Appendices should only include items that are required for reference purposes. Do not clutter the report with irrelevant items	Unless instructed otherwise, one copy of each data-collecting instrument should be included
17	Remember to leave sufficient time for revision and rewriting	Check that you have written in plain English. Check that your writing is legible
18	Try to get someone to read the report	Fresh eyes will often see errors you have overlooked

Writing the Report: Checklist

If you were writing a critique of a piece of research done by someone else, you might ask the following questions. Subject your own report to the same sort of examinations.

Ask yourself:

1. Is the meaning clear? Are there any obscure passages?
2. Is the report well written? check tenses, grammar, spelling, overlapping passages, punctuation, jargon.
3. Is the referencing well done? Are there any omissions?
4. Does the abstract give the reader a clear idea of what is in the report?

5. Does the title indicate the nature of the study?
6. Are the objectives of the study stated clearly?
7. Are the objectives fulfilled?
8. If hypotheses are postulated, were they testable? Are they proved or not proved?
9. Has a sufficient amount of literature relating to the topic been studied?
10. Does the literature review, if any, provide an indication of the state of knowledge in the subject? Is your topic placed in the context of the area of study as a whole?
11. Are all terms clearly defined?
12. Are the selected methods of data collection accurately described? Are they suitable for the task? Why were they chosen?
13. Are any limitations of the study clearly presented?
14. Have any statistical techniques been used? If so, are they appropriate for the task?
15. Are the data analysed and interpreted or merely described?
16. Are the results clearly presented? Are tables, diagrams and figures well drawn?
17. Are conclusions based on evidence? Have any claims been made that cannot be substantiated?
18. Is there any evidence of bias? Any emotive terms or intemperate language?
19. Are the data likely to be reliable? Could another researcher repeat the methods used and have a reasonable chance of getting the same or similar results?
20. Are recommendations (if any) feasible?
21. Are there any unnecessary items in the appendix?
22. Would you give the report a passing grade if you were the examiner? If not, perhaps an overhaul is necessary.

17. Guidelines for the Presentation of the DPP

You are required to consult your tutor about the precise format for your report, as this will vary according to the nature of the project. Typical section headings, however, might be: Objectives; Background; Agency Context; Methodology; Analysis/Findings; Discussion; Recommendations; References; Appendices.

Length

There is a limit of between 8,000 and 10,000 words (not including references), and this must be observed. Exceeding the word limit will result in a penalty to the overall grade.

Presentation

The report should be typed on A4 pages, in 1.5 spacing, leaving a 1-inch margin on all sides. Pages should be numbered consecutively at the centre of the bottom page, with page 1 commencing after the table of contents. The report should be divided into sections which are numbered 1, 2, etc., with a section heading.

Layout

The report should start with a title page, followed by an abstract, reface/acknowledgements and table of contents in that order. The table of contents should list the chapters with page numbers.

Abstract

The abstract should contain no more than 200 words and should provide a succinct summary of the aims and results of the study.

Format

The format outlined above should be followed. Only items referred to in the text of the dissertation should be included as references.

Footnotes

As an alternative to a style, which places references to published works in the text, students may wish to use a footnoting style. Footnotes should be identified by a number which appears in the text. They should be numbered consecutively and followed by complete numbered references at the end of the Report, the detail of which should be the same as that outlined above. The important point to remember is that whatever referencing style you adopt be consistent

Appendices

Background material that would not be appropriate in the text of the report such as sample questionnaires used, should be placed in appendices, labelled A.... to Z. The appendices should follow the list of references, at the end of the Report.

18.Demonstration Practice Project – Criteria for Marking

Marks will be awarded according to how well the project meets the following criteria:

Introduction	Background/Context	Methodology	Findings/Analysis & Discussion	Recommendations	Presentation
15%	20%	15%	25%	10%	15%
Shows a capacity to identify a relevant practice or policy issue or problem.	Demonstrates an ability to source the most significant theory and research evidence relevant to the issue.	Indicates an ability to choose, justify and employ appropriate research methods and apply them to the problem.	Demonstrates the ability to present a balanced account of the findings.	Demonstrates an ability to reflect appropriately on the research and identify key learning from it.	Layout consistent with the guidance provided.
Provides sufficient contextual information to situate the problem.	Demonstrates ability to organise and analyse the literature.	Shows that rigorous and ethical data gathering took place.	Discusses the findings from the research in the context of the literature.	Shows the capacity to relate the findings to child protection and welfare policy.	Logical and coherent presentation, inclusion of tables and charts if relevant.
Forms a useful questions for exploration.	Identifies where this project will fill an existing gap in evidence.	Includes evidence of tools used to gather evidence.	Demonstrates an ability to draw implications from the findings.	Recommendations appropriately targeted at different levels in the relevant sector or organisation.	Correct referencing conventions applied consistently. Proof-read, with correct spelling and punctuation.

19. Tutorials

Each student is assigned a course tutor. The tutorial relationship is intended to be a key learning resource for the student throughout the course. The tutor's task is to help the student get the most from the opportunities presented by the course. Students should ensure to arrange a tutorial appointment in each College - based week, or between weeks where appropriate.

The tutor's tasks include the following:

- ❖ to assist the student at the outset to identify relevant learning objectives which will constitute the student's personal learning agenda for the course as a whole
- ❖ to guide the student in relation to the completion of written assignments
- ❖ to assist in the identification and development of a theme / topic for the student's Demonstration Practice Project and to approve the final choice
- ❖ to monitor and assist the student's progress towards the successful completion of the Demonstration Practice project, in particular through the setting of agreed tasks for completion between College based weeks
- ❖ to examine, with other course staff, the student's course assignments, and to offer detailed written feedback to the student. (N.B. Law essay is examined by the Law course teacher and externally examined by Dr. Aisling Parkes, Senior Lecturer in the Department of Law in the National University of Ireland, Cork)

While tutors provide as much guidance as possible within the context of the course programme, students have ultimate responsibility for submitting written work on time and for the quality of this work.

20. M.Sc. in Child Protection and Welfare

Eligible candidates have the option of registering for the M.Sc. programme in Child Protection and Welfare. Admission will be confined to candidates who achieve a 60% average in the Postgraduate Diploma year. The M.Sc. will be awarded on successful completion of the Postgraduate Diploma course programme in Year 1 and a 20,000 word dissertation in Year 2. Registered students will have access to supervision and a programme of seminars. A briefing session on the M.Sc. Option will be held during the year.

21. General Regulations

College Calendar

As well as containing key dates, part 3 of the College Calendar contains all information concerning graduate studies in Trinity College, Dublin including all general regulations. See <http://www.tcd.ie/calendar>.

College Policies

Students are expected to familiarise themselves with and adhere to the College's policies. Details are available at <http://www.tcd.ie/about/policies/>.

Attendance

Attendance is expected at all tutorials. When students are not able to attend they should inform the Course Administrator via email as early as possible. Full attendance at all classes is compulsory. Absence is excused only on medical certification*, and attendance lists will be kept. The award of Diploma will be made only on the basis of full attendance.

Absence of greater than fifteen days on medical certification will require the student to apply to the Dean of Graduate Studies for permission to repeat all or part of the course

Peer Support and Respect

Along with academic staff, every student shares the responsibility to help create a supportive and respectful learning environment. This involves accepting that there will be different learning needs in every group, allowing peers to contribute and treating colleagues and lecturers with respect. For effective group learning, class members need to know that interactions will be conducted in a safe and confidential environment. Please be respectful of others' contribution and don't discuss individual details outside of the class. Refer to the College Dignity and Respect Policy for more details.

Problems, Complaints and Grievances

If you have an academic-related problem you should discuss it first with the lecturer or supervisor concerned. General issues affecting the class should be channelled through your student representative to the Course Director. If you have a course related problem yo should contact the Course Administrator who may refer it to the relevant service. If you have a problem with a Trinity service, you should contact the relevant service.

If you have a complaint which discussion with the relevant academic, Course Administrator or Trinity Service cannot resolve, you should contact the Course Director. If the problem remains, you should consult the Head of School or the Dean of Graduate Studies. More information about the Student Complaints Procedure can be found here.

Student Evaluation and Feedback

Information about the College requirements for evaluation and feedback can be found at <https://www.tcd.ie/teaching-learning/quality/quality-assurance/evaluation.php>.
